Summer Resorts Sought by Citizens and Others for Rest and Recreation.

Lake Steamers Set Ill Adrift from the Awful Disaster of Last Sunday.

Late Arrivals at Waukesha, Kenosha, Lakeside, Racine, and Other Favorite Watering-Places.

[Last Wednesday, Mich., July 15.—Special.]—The steamboats of the Graham & Morton line, which run out of the most prominent docks of Milwaukee were destroyed and badly scorched by the fire which swept over the lake front of the city. Very few exceptions from Milwaukee or its Port have remained out, and with them a trip of the Federal Association of Steamboat Agents, who spent Friday on the lake, there has been very little to relieve the dull monotony of the week. Thursday morning's excursion was an unpleasant affair, and has finished for the most certain that any more of the steamers, which did considerable damage. Trains were failed, hours spent about on the water, and meals probably consumed. No true were lost, but the guns, following in close to the mole of Goodrich's wharves, has allowed vessels to a considerable extent. Life-preservers are supposed have been used on all the boats, and several large outbreaking and the occasion. The people has been very hardened and the lunchroom are not to their late good mood. It is reported that four more will pull by the sinking week and that others will take on a similar event. The largest number of arrivals at the hotels have been from Chicago, St. Louis, and the South. A delegation of fifty from Louisville will arrive at Race St. Louis next week. A party of twenty-five from Lynchburg, Va., is expected at the Summer House today.

The steamer Sheboygan, which went under Sunday, is being repaired, and will be on the lake again next week.

Class Lecture Rallings will be opened next week, in accordance for the Lake Park Hotel season Sunday evening.

C. H. Carlton of Chicago is at Lake Park for the season, and is decorating his previous good reputation for an expert painter. J. Murray and son of Peoria, Ill., are at the Sheboygan House for their twelfth season. Judge Barnes of Sheboygan chaperons a party of young gentlemen struggling in the Sunshine.

Among the attractions of the coming week will be a moonlight regatta at the Sheboygan Yacht Club evening. A prize band of Carthage, Ill., is furnishing music at the season City of St. Louis, and will remain until August 1. Its concerts:

[Special Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

Waukesha, Wis., July 15.—[Special.]—All that is necessary to convince the inquisitive that Waukesha has at present more visitors than at this time last season is an attempt at accommodation at any of the fashionable resorts. The Fashion House is about the only hotel that is not already overcrowded, and at the rate guests have been coming here that place is not to be left out of most much. The Bluff House has been filled for nearly two weeks. The Arlington has added seventy guests to the last two in five days. Manager Bole of the Park View has accommodations for nearly 150 more than he has occupants, and while hotels are in the same condition.

Arrangements of all classes have been completed with a view, and from now until the end of September Waukesha will be in her gayest glory. One of the most brilliant social gatherings ever held was the Leopold ball given at the Bluff House Wednesday evening. Last season the character of the entertainments given by this house gave it a reputation, and the success had this season was therefore of importance to society. Notwithstanding the attractions was turned to perfection, the ballroom was the crowded for comfort. The costumes were brilliant, while the music was in exacting mood. The most event of the week, however, will be the grand ball at Judkinson Hall next week after next. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson A. Colgate entertained a large company of friends at their country villa Thursday evening. Colorado gentlemen had been made the entertaining the Democratic guests, but the great event overtook Mr. Colgate's hands for a season of country in one of the best good souls, and genuine genius and unbounded hospitality of the host and hostess made the occasion one of the most delightful of the season. Among the distinguished guests were Mr. Tilden, Mr. Bayard, Mr. Hendricks, Mr. Thurman, Mr. Randall, Mr. Hewitt, Mr. Manning, Mr. Whitney, Mr. Vilas, Mr. Pendleton, Mr. Gorman, Mr. Bissell, Mr. Cockrell, Mr. Voorhees, Mr. Harris, Mr. Wilson of Maryland, Mr. Wilson of Missouri, Mr. Eustis, Mr. Lamar, Mr. Garland, Mr. Gibson, Mr. Hill, Mr. Colquitt, Mr. Brown, Mr. Gray, Mr. Ransom, Mr. Jones of Florida, Mr. Jones of Nevada, Mr. Call, Mr. Williams, Mr. Saulsbury, Mr. Kernan, Mr. Pugh, Mr. Walker, Mr. Ingalls, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Blair, Mr. Wilson of Iowa, Mr. Allison, Mr. Sherman, Mr. Hoar, Mr. Edmunds, Mr. Frye, Mr. Dawes, Mr. Logan, Mr. Conger, Mr. Platt, Mr. Chandler, Mr. Burnside, Mr. Anthony, Mr. Ferry, Mr. Jones of Nevada, Mr. Miller, Mr. Windom, Mr. Morrill, Mr. Sewell, Mr. Cameron of Pennsylvania, Mr. Cameron of Wisconsin, Mr. Mahone, Mr. Riddleberger, Mr. Warner, Mr. Van Wyck, Mr. Platt, Mr. Jones of Arkansas, Mr. Pike

Shorter Mystery of Marshall S. Pritchard at Rockford Solved After Six Years.

Alarming and Sensational Litigation Over the Identity of a Large Lost Cow.

Summons of Calamity—Electric Light War at Pioneer—Park Family Reunion—Social Items.

Baltimore, Md., July 18.—[Special.]—Considerable interest was manifested in the mysterious disappearance of Marshall S. Pritchard, which occurred in Rockford (Ill.), on the 6th of July, 1879, and which was solved Thursday by the receipt of a confidential letter from an inmate of the Eastern Jail. The writer signed himself Charles F. Warren, but, in truth, is a notorious safe-breaker by the name of James Hayes. He is now confined in the Eastern County Jail for forgery, and from his cell sent a letter to Superintendent Wagner, in which he says:

"There is a subject you may like to see the last of. Marshall S. Pritchard of Rockford came to Baltimore and put his money in a safe deposit company. I will conclude all in the proper scientific language."

Superintendent Wagner has not investigated the matter for all it is worth. James Hayes was brought before the grand jury only last winter from the penitentiary on false, worthless charges. At that time Hayes was very anxious to believe that Frank Shute had been murdered. Shute had a hand in the affair, there was not sufficient evidence to hold him to trial. Both the makers of certain confessions of guilt.

[The night of Dec. 31, 1879, Marshall S. Pritchard, cashier of Third National Bank, Rockford, Ill., and treasurer of that county, was given by his friends a farewell supper at the residence of Mrs. Pritchard's parents, and about midnight left the house, ostensibly to go to the bank and close up his books. Before leaving he had told his wife that he would be back in a few minutes, and that they would then go to the depot and take the train for Chicago, where they were to spend the night and the next day at the house of Mrs. Pritchard's brother, and proceed thence to Baltimore, their former home, to visit relatives and friends. Mrs. Pritchard and the party from whom he separated the fatal night continued to await their return to the house.

Mr. Pritchard, the eldest of seven children, was born in Washington, has resided a short time in Chicago, and was married at Rockford, Ill., in 1876. He was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity, and was highly esteemed by his friends and acquaintances. He was also a member of the Rockford Guards, and was a lieutenant in that company. He was a man of fine personal appearance, and was very popular in social circles. He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church, and was a teacher in the Sunday-school. Clearings at the principal cities of the United States for last two weeks:

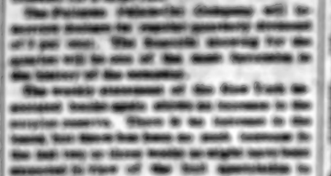
New York exchange and quotes as follows:

Chicago, 25c premium.
Boston, 5c discount.

The bank statement in this city again shows an increase over those of the corresponding week of last year. Business men still expect a good autumn production. There is, however, an uncomfortable amount of idle money, and nothing to justify the investment here in the stock markets. Leading businessmen regard this situation as unfortunate. It is generally put off ahead of the election that has made profit in the disturbance of the markets. For the purposes of comparison fairly good, and the quotes of investment securities relatively higher than they have been for many months.

There has not a dollar been brought for money yesterday. Sterling exchange was quoted at the quotations, with quiet quiet at 4%, Sterling bills were called New York, though a few brought to New York that have been held to be sacrificed before the coming week, as the Continent here is an important element in the market, and foreigners are having doubts. The following were the Chicago quotations of foreign bills:



Commercial drafts were quiet. The rates opposite to the Chicago Stock Exchange were: $1.00 Clearing-House to 10c, $1.00 City Bank 10c to 15c, $1.00 Board of Trade 15c to 20c, $1.00 Chicago Clearing-House 20c to 25c, and 1% premium to 10c. The rates over the counter ranged: $1.00 Union Stock to 5c, $1.00 Continental Bank 5c to 10c, $1.00 Commercial Bank 10c to 15c, $1.00 City Bank to par, $1.00 City National 15c to 20c, $1.00 to 25c, $1.00 to 30c, $1.00 Chicago and Western Indiana to 40c, and $1.00 Northern Trust to 50c.

Exchanges at the Chicago Clearing-House for the week ending July 27:

Report of Trade Clearing-House:

There is a feeling among the private bankers, both in and out of town, that the Treasury will not buy bonds except at prices which will yield the purchaser more than 4 per cent, and that the present bond issue will be the last one for some time. They would have preferred that all bonds matured, and all bonds offered, should be taken by the people of the country instead of the great banks to which Chicago is tributary.

Air Can Not Only Go to Bear Dances, but to Dance Waltzes.

Lake Bluff, Ill., July 30.—[Special.]—The summer night will see the many meetings of the Bluff River Conference of this city of the past. This reminds me of a conversation I overheard between two Board of Trade men a day or two ago in Chicago. One was objecting here with his family and the other knew the place by name only:

"Well, but does it rip Carleton blood," said the unbeliever, when your conscientiousness is over what will you do out there to relieve the monotony?"

"I wonder when you become will ever get it into your heads that the camp-meeting is not one of the attractions of the place," said the other. "That little piece of advertising you have been a 'shyster,' but like the rest of others you never heard of it before, and I suppose, of course, you never could find the place myself. It was seven years ago when a few of the Chautauqua camp-meeting officers wanted to branch out. They appointed a committee to select a place, and after a time of search secured a beautiful tract of fifty acres bordered on the north and south by deep and romantic ravines, on the east by Lake Michigan, and, by a gift of fifty acres to the fifty original shareholders for the cost of the road, a Pottawatomie Indian named the Indian Goldsmith, Samuel Sheridan Jr., was the leading spirit in the movement and shortly after coming to that for the original property he bought 160 acres adjoining on the north. The coming year Goldsmith, before again, has been sold to many eastern people, and Chicago & Evans, who has one of the handsomest summer residences on the north shore, and a number of others have purchased for the purpose of erecting cottages. Last year I was one of the fortunate ones to secure a lot, and I have built a cottage and have my family there for the season. This year I am going to build a large cottage, and expect to have my family there for the season. This year I am going to build a large cottage, and expect to have my family there for the season. [SPECIAL TO TRIBUNE.]

Boston, Mass., July 30.—Chicago's ubiquitous people saw the first game of the series between Boston and Chicago. But the first half of the game took place in the other game between a visiting team, the home team getting in two runs in the second on a base hit by Duffy, two singles, stolen bases by Nash and Quinn, Duffy's fumble, and an error by the third baseman. Boston scored one more in a fourth, and a single, Duffy's muff of a thrown ball, and Quinn's poor throw to third. Boston's batting seems to be weak, but Nash and Quinn are hard to retire. Boston's fielding was not up to the standard, but Nash's work at second was brilliant. Attendance, 5,000. Score:

Several young men of the city have formed a military organization styled the U. S. The company is chartered and intends to carry arms, and will have a meeting at the Grand Pacific Hotel Monday, Wednesday, and Friday next.

W. H. Jones, an officer of the Central Detail, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Justice Bonfil at the instance of H. S. Lee. Lee claims that he was struck the left eye on West Madison street July 7 (the day of the riot) by Jones, without any provocation whatever. Capt. Stanley, who went to Bonfil's office with Lee, says that he saw the blow struck, and that Jones was perfectly justified in striking Lee, as the latter was using abusive language to him. Bonfil, after hearing the evidence, dismissed the case.

The Lumbermen's Exchange was to have met last night to decide whether to secure better fire protection in the lumber district. Only fifteen persons were present, so nothing was done. Mr. Tax Bonfil suggested that a tug should be stationed in the river and the cost divided among the lumbermen, but the matter was not acted upon. The question of purchasing water to keep the lumber piles saturated will be passed upon by the annual meeting on July 25, when also the proposition referred to above.

William Leonard, an English salesman, 21 years old, living at No. 222 South Franklin street, is a prisoner at the Chicago Avenue Station charged with attempting to commit a criminal assault on Mary Lang, a 10-year-old girl who was married to the lessee of a saloon. The girl made such a fierce resistance that no crime was committed, although she received a severe beating. Leonard's captor, a boy living across the street from Leonard, arrived just in time to prevent the commission of the crime.

Judge Tuley has appointed Thomas Hoyne receiver of the property of the Chicago Sanitary Company, which has been engaged in the business of manufacturing fertilizers from the refuse of the packing houses. The company has been in the hands of a receiver for some time, and the appointment of Mr. Hoyne is a mere formality. The bond is fixed at $5,000.

Benjamin F. Allen of Cook County Jail yesterday was arrested, a week or two ago on a charge of assault and battery preferred against him before Justice Kenyon by Mrs. Sarah Hidding for $11.75, but on the ninth an attorney had settled the matter to the satisfaction of the complainant. Allen, however, was not discharged, but was arrested before the Justice on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He was released on bail in the sum of $300, which was furnished by Mrs. Hidding.

Policeman Thomas Hayes of the Desplaines street station, who was shot in the face by a burglar named Frank Hall, alias Frank Wilson, on the night of July 4, while attempting to arrest the latter, is still confined to his home, and will be for some time to come. Hall, who is now in the County Jail awaiting trial, has been identified by Mrs. Hayes as the man who shot her husband. Hayes is also confident that Hall is the man who shot him, but the latter has refused to admit the charge.

Edward Cullen, a boy living at No. 1 Sheffield avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Hoffman, charged with stealing a watch from Mrs. Mary Hoffman, who lives at No. 1 Sheffield avenue. The boy was taken to the Chicago Avenue Station, where he was locked up. He will be taken before Justice Kenyon this morning. [illegible] Paris, June 20.—[Special Correspondence.] After assuring I never thought to say another word about the Anniversaries of prisoners of the Bastile Stone, but I have been told a story connected with that melting epoch which I would regret to, and of the noble willingness to sacrifice what I represent as my serious two souls—that, for the benefit of the engineer, lawyer and gentlemen, the Bastile Fete does merely a pretext that there may arise no award flowing down on those dogs praying to the Bastions behind the pre noble-spirited occupants of the Bastion.

"Come to Concord," wrote Miles Channing to Hawthorne soon after a time, "Emerson is away, and nobody here to bore you," which sentence contains a pretty hint to the possibility of the two most distinguished men of letters with America has produced that ever the sunset and the most prominent point upon the opposite of the general travels. If any one would be supposed to be a bore to the public, that man was surely Emerson, but he gifted neighbor seems not to have had any strong words for his society. Rather did he sparingly enjoy Thoreau, who would seem to have been a sufficiently original person to have furnished him, merely as a study of character. But it does not appear that Hawthorne was ever particularly fond of the society of men of letters, even though they have also been men of genius. He so found it go to the Saturday Club of authors, but would play cards with one neighbor in the smoking room of the boarding house in Liverpool evening after evening. Indeed, he liked the physical force of what is commonly called out society, when he enjoyed any society with who he found, better than that which would have seemed more attuned to the taste. I quote simply to this the source of indefinable term, natural, elementary and not manufactured because of Nathaniel Hawthorne.

It is a curious fact that the natures of the two greatest men of each race, and, indeed, I think almost all men of genius have something of the same kind. Where we read what Mrs. Hawthorne wrote of the manner of conversation between her husband and Emerson, it is amusing to an unbeliever remarkable that Hawthorne should not have cared to confine himself to the society of the sage. His dark, questioning of Hawthorne. "Mr. Emerson delights to hear, he talks to him of all his plans, and Hawthorne looks puzzled. Mr. Emerson is a beautiful character, but he is not to be looked to for help in the affairs of life." There is a considerable body to a conversation of this nature which might well weary a person to the subject of a disembodied spirit, but to an ordinary mortal it is a thing to be avoided. Those persons who have had the good fortune to know Emerson will know what is meant by the remark that he was not a man to be looked to for help in the affairs of life. They had an opportunity to know their every-day nature more at least superficially acquainted with Hawthorne, and they have no regret themselves in searching more than the general result. It is saying much for the genius of Hawthorne that he could be the husband and father and friend of those children whose keen judgment many years of the absence of intercourse with as it did. The secret is doubtless to be found in the fact that Hawthorne was a man of the world, and Emerson was not. The one was a man of affairs, and the other was not. The one was a man of the world, and the other

Lady Martin, the most prominent actress that ever sat at the British table, has just published in England a book, "The Stage of Shakespeare's Heroic Characters," which has received favorable attention from all the foreign theatrical centers. A few months ago in one of the issues of the London Academy a gray-haired lady witnessed Mary Anderson's performance of Julia in "The Hunchback," passionately appealing in the triumph of the young Californian actress. It was Helen Faucit, who nearly half a century before had made her debut in the same part, and had at once taken her firm rank as Charlotte Cushman's leading lady at Covent Garden. She therefore is the contemporary and personal friend of most of the prominent actors of that time, and especially of the tragedian of the school of Kean, who was the Edwin Forrest of England. Lady Martin, who was the Miss Faucit of other times, has written her book with all the fine tact of a sympathetic heart. It is unpretentious and with the best people and

New York, July 28.—[Special.]—The attention of Southern Democrats in this section are much interested with the feeling expressed in the Cincinnati Enquirer that the story of John G. Milburn's visit to Private Dalton when the soldier was here another reason for the enmity Milburn's enemies in the Enquirer feel more especially toward Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith. Milburn was in New York with the President's own telegram, or request to see Dalton, and Secretary of National Government to whom he appeals next is, as Gilmore.

"I feel very warmly here Mr. Milburn's interest started by myself that no trace of it should be apparent for long to-day. I succeeded in getting to Governor's up to-day about the interest of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Milburn. There was a conversation. The first remarks of Mrs. Cleveland's were: 'What could I notice in under such circumstances?' I had been invited to dine with a number of persons present, and Mr. Milburn entered into conversation with them. Private Dalton was discovered sneaking in, though it was said to others. I was invited to inspect the establishment by the private, but not in a hasty manner. I was myself quite unnoticed also. He had shown him to the young to escape the Enquirer's and but not acquaintance again from that time on. He was going to hear John Gray's speech the day, to work, and under a new and unprecedented state of affairs. That he began to make some objections himself. He gathered from conversation to this time, and I have come to where he could and will.

"Look here, Gilmore! No bulldozing! Do you understand. I won't have any bulldozing."

The statement that he had an invention of bulldozing his own property to their value, would be but untrue.

The excitement of rich seems still to be contagious for all who have the rich men, digest brains, who influenced the world, has given extraordinarily the usual report of it to friends, but it has driven out many others.

Gen. Hugh B. Hodson of Kentucky, who was born not many days and the first high-grade Confederate officer captured during the War, is in prominent reporters, but he was another one of it. Gen. Tillman accompanied him to this of reports. He was at West Point and Mexican with Gen. Grant, and succeeding to him at Fort Donelson in 1862. He had not been in the Government service since the War from 1865, and was a farmer, as he knew, when in London was. The interest at 20 years of age has just begun to live for the ante-bellum. He married a beautiful and accomplished young Virginia woman a few months ago and now has been settling up. He is to like for the Government of Kentucky has now and a leading candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Gen. Hodson is a Democrat, who formed the General Gallagher, is a short man with a healthy face and a stubby gray beard. His eyes are small and twinkle, showing the use of strong tobacco in all form. The color is an advantage on the subject of bulldog by the subject of exercise. I was talking with the party at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and the subject of a large number of bulldogs are being constantly manufactured, but if I had to rely on the Government to patronage I would be in the poorhouse. There was a time before the War when one country set all others to the wall and the aristocrats. Since the War we have been prospering now and. The Southern and European have succeeded Belgium and have come to break the chief source trade was with the South. They have got to be the sweating of a man who holds a plant shanty on his farm. Farmers pastors in the southern are interested in the Government which now seems to be the only one which has not to an iron and stones into and for sale of the land. We have an open Wilderness Group support the moment is at the energy of some such book powers as Gates. Why, they might use DEALERS of cotton on New York City point to some of one. The last thing the Government can do for the next is to hold a section of land why any one can rule the ships be on the land as of the south of foreign purchases I no only get into trouble in our present condition."

Dalton, Penn., when he came here this week, was here spending a week at the Continental on Middle Main street, Lake Erie, where there a Democrat was Milburn. He says that the talking has improved for several years. This opinion was confirmed by Dr. George G. Baker of Akron, who is one of the visit questions. He said to me: "The burning of the huge hotel in Pittsburg proved that place as a watch, and Akron are not an exception in forestry. In some sections that there has been an effort to convert the bush, a rubber-like growth to found for a to the gums opposite Cincinnati. I was talking on the local aspect of Pittsburg at the burned point to the hotel. The watchman on duty the Baer's Brightship branch, and the Southern taking hands the hours."

Gen. Edward S. Bragg, who formerly represented the Fond du Lac district in Congress, is a short man with a healthy face and a stubby gray beard. His eyes are small and twinkle, showing the use of strong tobacco in all form. The color is an advantage on the subject of bulldog by the subject of exercise. I was talking with the party at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and the subject of a large number of bulldogs are being constantly manufactured, but if I had to rely on the Government to patronage I would be in the poorhouse. A Description of the Largest Office Building in the World.

Heavy Sales of the Last Week—Increase Derived from Chicago Property.

Text of the Business Convulsion Sanborn-Canadian Clerk's Row Reasons.

The market continues the most lasting characteristic that more could not. Another good demand for large business properties is developing prices, only a fair movement in outlying property, and a demand for large sums for the wealth of capital. It is worth noting that the initiative in the purchase and sale of valuable buildings and lands is generally taken by the buyer. Four out of such buildings are offered by their owners—they are wealthy for investment. Some investment real-estate men of the old factors that circulation from stocks a bond market later to the country, and the organization of a good market in the bill to quite general. It is remarkable that the immense quantities of city capital will be put into some of the completed buildings in the fall. Those are no interest of consequence to money, but rather much as possible of the completed buildings in the fall. The investment value of the most-sold have already been noted by The Tribune—that the settlement values of the lands and business streets, nothing and the World Fair, Prince Sherwood and others in Wm. A. Fuller; business owner of Sherman and Van Buren, building, Federal Improvement Company, to Wm. A. Fuller, $50,000; and Wm. Lake street, southwest corner of Peoria, the old, Heinrich, Home Insurance to Wilbur S. Gutherson, $50,000, a number of west have been between the property on the corner of La Salle and Madison streets, 70 x 100 feet, after the agreement with Mr. Fuller was made, but before the papers have been was an offer of $50,000 more and a commission of $5,000, but the most part of the thing have been passed the transaction. Mr. Fuller has been offered $50,000 for the property, and a new statement that he could get $50,000. The lot is very advantageously located, having a frontage of 120 feet on Madison street. The building itself is one of an older construction, and of brick, four stories and basements. Mr. Fuller bought the property for the purpose to demolish them to be present conditions and improvements. Another sale of this character is to be noted, but to a different class. It is of an entirely different character from the sale of the Van Buren street to Phelps. In that case it was the sale to join the contiguous land to enable the owner to put up a large building. In the present case it is the sale of a building which is to be torn down and replaced by a new one. The property is on the west side of Clark street, 100 feet south of Van Buren street, and has a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 100 feet. The building is a four-story brick, and has been occupied by the Chicago Telephone Company. The property was sold by Mrs. Mary Ann Brayton to Mrs. Mary Ann Brayton, and the consideration was $50,000. The property is to be torn down and replaced by a new one.
